
New Car For Commander

C. T. Moses, Jr. had the keys right there on Tuesday morning for American Legion State Commander Charles F. Powell, Jr. of Newport News. Commander Power and his daughter, Debbie, were accompanied by Clyde Broughton, Legion State chairman, Rehabilitation, of Hampton and the State Adjutant, Bernard H. Gollinger of Richmond, as they traded another Impala for a '71 model in cottonwood green with the commander's insignia on the front door. At the far right is Burke Guill, Adjutant, American Legion Post 104, Appomattox. C. T. Moses, Jr. is a past Post Commander and past District vice-commander. Part of the trip by the visitors was spent in a tour of the Veterans' Hospital, Salem, a visit to the Roanoke Regional Office, a look at the new Post Home, Lynchburg and a speaking engagement by Commander Powell who addressed several Legion posts in the Roanoke area Monday evening. With this new Impala on the way, it's time for the State Adjutant to do the same. Adjutant Gollinger plans to return shortly for his new automobile.

ST. LUKE

Mal. 3:10 "Bring ye all the tithes into the store house; that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now here with, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." It seemed that the idea is opening up in the minds of the St. Luke Church members and friends because the rally was a good success. Over one thousand dollars was taken in for the building fund. At the St. Luke Church on December 13, friends from Evergreen, Hat Creek, Free Springs, Mrs. Ora Smith and Miss Lily Holcomb, from Pamplin, were present also.

The social honoring the newly elected pastor, Rev. J. McLaughlin and his wife was enjoyed very pleasantly by all present. It was sponsored by Mrs. L. M. Canada with Mrs. Ruth Wood in charge of the refreshment committee.

The welcome and purpose of the meeting was done very inspiringly by Professor Oscar Wood. Mrs. Canada rendered a solo. Miss Cynthia and her group sang a spiritual duet.

The three Haskins' sisters were notified Monday of the death of their brother, Elder Norman Haskins of Philidelphia, Pa.

DIAL GOOD NEWS

Forget A Gift?

Forget a gift for someone? Put this note at the top of the things - to- do-before -Christmas: "Mail check for Christmas Seals."

The Seals went out last month and everyone is apparently using them on their cards and packages, but a great many people have not sent their checks.

A lot of people need your help. Each year 50,000 new cases are found in the nation; last year 1,900 in Virginia. Each year some 8,000 in the nation die of this preventable disease. In spite of notable victories against tuberculosis, 1,300 people were admitted to sanatoriums in the State and over 5,000 active cases remained confined to private homes," stated the Central Virginia Tuberculois & Respiratory Disease Association President, Mr. Robert B. Quick.

These are some of the facts announced by the Central Virginia Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association as it makes its annual appeal for funds for its continuing work of education prevention, case-finding, testing, research and service to hospital patients.

Proceeds from the sale of Seals locally i n recent years have been used for such things as:

– Buying new respiratory equipment for hospitals and nursing scholarships

– Assisting the County Health Department in chest screening clinics and tuberculin testing in the schools.

– Helping medical personnel keep abreast of the latest diagnostic and treatment methods.

– Providing reference materials and visual aids for health education teachers; making available information to the public through literature, news - papers, TV, and radio.

Sec. Hardin Sees New Era For U. S. Agriculture

"Farmers are entering a new era with the programs announced today for 1971-crop wheat, feed grain and cotton," according to Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin.

"The Agricultural Act of 1970 provides the way to break with the past by enabling farmers to employ their land and capital resources in planting the crops they can best produce. At the same time the Act continues the protection of farm income through payments and loans.

"A major departure from current programs frees farmers from rigid planting restrictions applied to each crop on the basis of production patterns reaching back several years. The 1971 programs give farmers a much wider choice in using their acreages without losing program benefits.

"While loans will continue to protect against depressed prices, the new provisions place greater emphasis on market needs as the guide for producers' planting d e c i s i o n s. The acreage provisions announced today are designed primarily to keep the overall excess of productive capacity in check to prevent a return of surpluses.

Users of the feed grain group offers a difficult decision for farmers in 1971. However, each individual can better relate his particular operation to the market than can the government. Under the new program, a base acreage of acreage for corn or other crops is now possible without a farmer being forced out of the program. Wheat and grain sorghum producers have a similar choice.

"With tight cotton acreage and marketing controls r e moved, the way is now clear for producers who can raise this crop competitively to expand if they wish. Previously, marketing quota penalties for overplanting made this impossible.

"Hopefully, the Act will encourage shifts in crop acreages from farm to farm that will make each a more successful financial operation. For farmers who want to shift completely out of wheat, feed grain or cotton production, the payments will continue on a gradually reducing level to help them make the transition.

"The keystone of the new approach gives farmers the opportunity to relate a much larger portion of their acreage to the market as they determine and continue to participate. As a result, the interplay of market needs and farmers' planting decisions will play a much greater role in price than in several years."

also expected to work closely with CVPDC's Criminal Justice Committee in the on-going process of refining the plan and in interpreting it to district publics for implementation."

Recently Harding gained some attention by being elected student government president of the Central Virginia Community College. Being hampered in the elections because of his work record, he admitted that "not too many student bodies would take on a 29 year old ex-con for a student president." CVCC students saw things another way and dolivered him a 60% vote.

Elated over the news of his appointment, Harding noted that the planning district concept "is a natural when it comes to organizing local social, physical and economic resources into a solid front to combat crime and develop ever better justice systems. I made a number of probes with the District Planning Commission and its predecessor, the Regional Planning Commission without luck," he said, "then this exciting opportunity appeared last Thursday."

"I'll work at it the only way I know how," Harding said, that's with everything I've got. I'm just as interested, too, in the other planning work Mr. Smedley has outlined for me in the Division of Current Planning."

Harding has lived in Lynchburg for the past eight years, is married to a Lynchburg native, the former Sarah Elizabeth Gowin, and has one son, Jay.

Mrs. Harding is a first grade teacher at the Robert S. Payne School.

Area Plan Receives Approval

A regional comprehensive plan for the cities of Lynchburg and Bedford and three outlying counties received endorsement from the Central Virginia Planning District Commission during its regular meeting Thursday night.

The commissioners endorsed the plan's general accuracy and content but will continue to review portions of the plan until Dec. 18. The plan is expected to be formally adopted at the commissioner's meeting on Jan. 28.

The plan provides for regional land use programs and water and sewer facilities for the cities of Lynchburg and Bedford and the counties of Appomattox, Bedford and Campbell. Included in the plan, which was recently completed in a rush-up program, are sections dealing with housing and community facilities.

Lynchburg's two representatives on the commission, Joseph R. Johnson and Carl D. Cress Jr., were not present for the voting on the plan. However, Cress later appeared at the meeting.

The plan was finished in October after the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs assisted the commission staff on a rush plan. The plan originally was slated to be sent to the Department of Housing and Urban Development by Oct. 1, 1970. Localities can not receive federal grants for water-sewer facilities and several community facilities programs until HUD approves the regional comprehensive plan.

The federally-imposed deadline was delayed until Oct. 1, 1971 after CVPDC and other districts in the state were unable to finish plans. CVPDC is under pressure to submit their plan by February because several urgent projects such as water-sewer programs and criminal justice studies can not begin until federal money is available. These projects are considered priority projects by the commission and can not be delayed until Oct. 1971.

When the plan was finished two months ago portions of the plan did not satisfy commissioners and even though passage of a plan was urgent they turned it down. The plan submitted Thursday included several revisions, especially in the housing element of the plan.
